A Word from our President

Merry Christmas everyone!

I know we have all been very busy and are likely trying to wrap up projects before the end of 2024 comes in just a very few short days! Along with the end of the year comes a good time to reflect on the many facets of our lives. Family and work likely absorb much of that time of reflection as many are looking at wrapping up the books for a tax year and the holiday week (or 2 for some) impel us to share much time with people called relatives. There might be a few we attempt to ignore, some to annoy and many that we might enjoy sharing some time around this season. I do encourage each of you during this time to reflect not only on the things of the past year, but to look forward to the upcoming year.

There are many things that may be unknown as we look toward a second helping of an incoming administration, a divisive country and world and current crop prices not exactly encouraging many customers at the current time. I implore each of our members to look into areas to be involved for the betterment of America. This can be in any area you feel called to and can assist with the skills you have. As the calendar rolls over into January the so-called 'meeting season' is upon us all. The opportunities to find these openings are copious. Please don't ignore them and find a place to help push on the improvements we all need around us. Many of these may be nearer to us than we could imagine.

Check out the upcoming events listed in this newsletter and on the indianalica.org website. Get your dues paid. Register for our convention and SHARE IT WITH OTHERS! (This includes vendors). As Christmas passes, go and find something to donate to the auction. And plan to make a trip to Florida. You might even consider doing that the week of February 11-15 in Jacksonville. Go early and spend a couple days at the auctions.

Looking forward to seeing you all in the New Year,
-Joe Stull

Congress Extends Farm Bill, Provides Farm Aid by Passing Last-Minute Funding Bill

By C.J. Miller December 21, 2024

Congress passed a bill late on Friday that not only prevents a shutdown of the federal government, it also continues to extend the 2018 Farm Bill through Sept. 30 2025. The bill, which passed in the House 366-34 and in the Senate 85-11, extends federal spending through March 14, 2025. The bill also provides $20.78 billion to help farmers with disaster losses during the past two years. In addition, it includes $10 billion in emergency aid to ag producers. However, the bill does not allow for the year-round sale of E-15 fuel, which had been included in a previous version of the funding bill earlier this week. That previous bill was shot down by President Trump, Elon Musk, and high-profile Republicans who felt there was too much spending in the bill and too many concessions given to Democrats. Trump also demanded that a continuing resolution also include an increase or elimination of the debt ceiling. The final bill that passed the House on Friday did not include any mention of the debt ceiling. Following the bill's passage, U.S. ag leaders applauded lawmakers for passing the bill and including significant emergency aid for U.S. ag producers.

Zippy Duvall, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF):

"Farm Bureau thanks the House and the Senate for finding common ground and passing legislation that will keep the government open and help farmers who are struggling with natural disasters, high supply costs and out-of-reach interest rates. For many farmers, the disaster relief provided through the CR will be the difference between planting for another year or going out of business.

"It's unfortunate that the final measure did not include authorization for year-round E-15 sales, which benefits farmers, leads to lower fuel prices, and helps America reach its sustainability goals. We will continue to push for this in 2025.

"The economic and disaster assistance in the CR is a temporary fix to long-term challenges facing America's farmers. The farm bill extension also offers a short reprieve, and gives lawmakers some breathing room to pass a modernized farm bill that will provide risk management support. We urge them to build on the bipartisan efforts demonstrated during the CR to pass a new five-year farm bill that delivers certainty for rural America and ensures a stable food supply for the nation."

Caleb Ragland, President of the American Soybean Association (ASA):

"Congress has come through with a bipartisan solution that not only keeps our government open but keeps our farms going. While we of course had our hopes set on a new five-year farm bill in 2024, we are grateful for this one-year extension and will urge Congress to pass an improved farm bill in the new year. And, having economic and disaster aid in this critical piece—at a critical time for farm families—is also very appreciated, along with other provisions. We thank leadership for their ongoing and late-night efforts."

Chandler Goule, CEO of the National Association of Wheat Growers (NAWG):

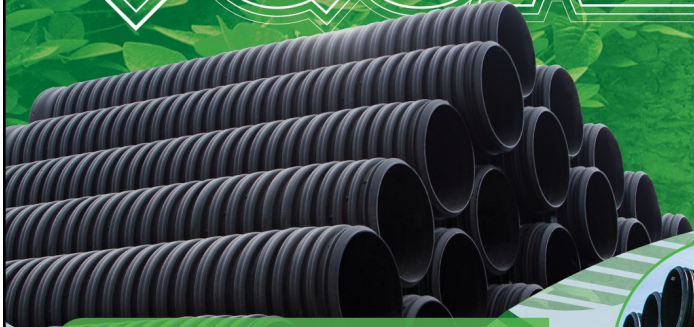

"NAWG applauds members of both the House of Representatives and Senate for coming together to provide much-needed economic assistance and disaster relief for farmers nationwide. While this legislation also includes a one-year farm bill extension and short-term relief, it is not a replacement for a long-term farm bill. As we enter the 119th Congress, NAWG urges lawmakers to work quickly to pass a farm bill that strengthens the farm safety net and provides long-term certainty for producers and rural America."
